

Initial Meeting with Participant 7

This initial meeting was the first. I discovered that even though I had pressed record, the entire meeting had not recorded. There was a full discussion on the purpose of the study, the expectations so that Participant 7 could make an informed decision as to whether to commit to the study or not. Below are the minuted responses to the questions posed to her.

CH: They are simple questions. So firstly, how many years have you been teaching or lecturing?

P7: Approximately 15 years.

CH: And how many at [this institution]?

P7: Approximately six years of those fifteen years.

CH: And generally what schools are you associated with?

P7: School of Management.

CH: Okay. Do you teach undergraduates?

P7: Yes. I teach undergraduates in the online space.

CH: How long have you been teaching in the online space?

P7: That would be five years now.

CH: Okay. And how would you define your teaching practice?

P7: My teaching practice. I would say, um, is very application-based. I like to bring in examples and practical applications. It is interactive. How would I describe it? Non theory based. Yes, more application of theory.

CH: So, students are engaged in the application, rather than focusing on theory?

P7: Yes, absolutely.

CH: Those are just the questions for this meeting. Thanks so much [Janine].

[Discussion that followed was on the module identified for the artifact.]
